Beautifully finished throughout with stylish contemporary interiors and sympathetic period features, this exceptional two-bedroom garden apartment with an additional study occupies the ground and lower ground floors of an elegant and well-maintained white stucco-fronted building.

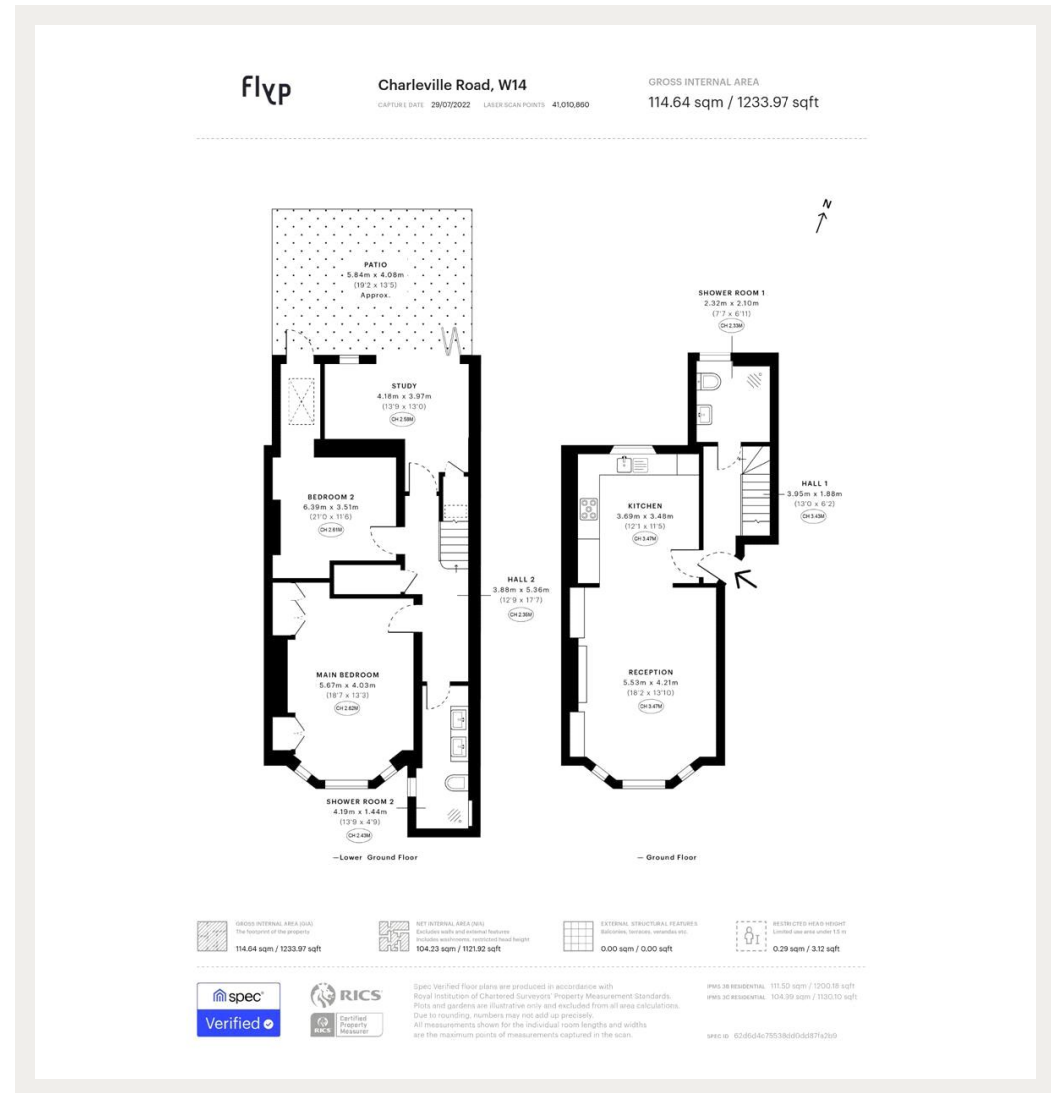

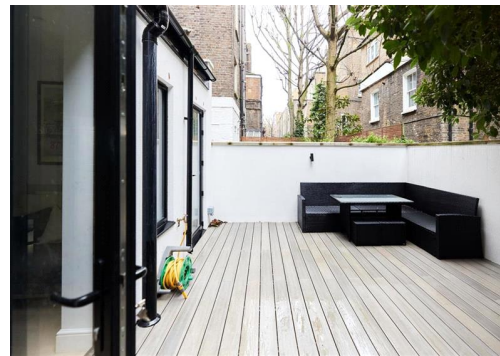

Offering an excellent balance of character, natural light, and versatile living accommodation, the property has been thoughtfully designed to create a sophisticated yet comfortable home, perfectly suited to modern London living.

Upon entering the apartment, you are immediately welcomed by impressive ceiling heights and an abundance of natural light, enhanced by the property's open-plan layout and dual-aspect reception space. The sense of volume and light throughout creates a wonderfully bright and inviting atmosphere from the moment you arrive.

To the front of the building sits the elegant reception room, seamlessly flowing into a sleek contemporary kitchen fitted with integrated appliances and space for a four-seater dining table. Designed with both entertaining and everyday living in mind, this sociable space works perfectly for hosting guests, relaxed evenings, or modern family living.

Heading down to the lower floor, the split-level layout continues to impress with well-balanced and thoughtfully arranged accommodation. The principal bedroom is generously proportioned and beautifully presented, featuring wooden flooring and a well-appointed en suite bathroom.

There is a further double bedroom, ideal for guests or family members, benefiting from a skylight that fills the room with natural light throughout the day, as well as direct access to the private garden.
